COMMISSIONERS IGNORED.

hildren Committed to a Hor Without Their Sanction.

Justice Goetting, in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day committed three children to St. Malachi's Home, despite the fact that the Charities Depart ment did not recommend it.

Chapter 711, of the law of 1894, requires that the Charities Commissioners shall that the Charities Commissioners shall investigate all cases before the Police Justices, where the parties involved may be committed to a charitable institution.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cullen, of 199 North Sixth street, wanted her three little children sent away. An agent of the Department reported that the woman's husband was in the penitentiary, while she was behind in her rent and had no means. If her children were provided for, he said, she had promised to go out in domestic service.

On this feport, despite its favorable nature, Commissioner Henry indorsed, "We cannot recommend the committal of these children."

Justice Goetting read this to Mrs. Cullen, and then said he would commit the children anyhow, as it was a deserving case. The next step in the matter will probably be taken by the Charities Commissioners.
